

Creativity and the arts can have a very positive impact for people with dementia. We are playing an active role in developing understanding in this emerging field. Our work focuses on dementia as it is portrayed in the arts and media; dementia-friendly creativity; and ethics, rights and professionalism in dementia arts practice. Here we are helping to draw out and develop evidence around ethical issues which arts, social and health care professionals need to address in their creative practice.